An Explanation

Some may wonder how I determined which churches to include in this directory and history. Generally, I have included those congregations which have a recent history of opposition to institutionalism and centralized control. My rule-of-thumb is to include churches which are not embarrassed by being labeled as “non-institutional.” That is not to say that I endorse every practice or teaching of every congregation in this directory—nor is my endorsement needed.

I acknowledge up front that I may have failed to include some congregations which deserve to be listed. If so, it is because I don’t have enough knowledge about them in order to obtain the needed information. Thanks to Rusty Taylor for his help in obtaining much of the current information for the directory. We have made considerable effort to seek information, but have not received a response from some area congregations.

It is my desire that this publication be a useful tool in promoting communication and scriptural fellowship between brethren in this area. This could have been a more useful tool if we would have received more cooperation from brethren in supplying the requested information. You will note that some have chosen not to reveal as much information as we hoped to receive. I can only assume that those who have asked not to have their home addresses or phone numbers published are fearful of how the information will be used.

I have no doubt that some of the information in the directory will be “out-of-date” before the ink is dry on the pages. This is especially true of e-mail addresses since many people change addresses frequently. Nevertheless, several have expressed that they found past editions very useful, and for that reason we were motivated to proceed with this edition.
